The Pen for Life™

Whatever your stance on sustainability, there's no denying that its in our long-term interests to cut down on non-recyclable waste.

This is especially pressing when we consider the tens of millions of plastic pens sold globally every day. Virtually none of that plastic is recycled because each pen is essentially a mixture of components manufactured from different types of plastic.

The primary non-recyclable component of a pen is the ink refill or cartridge, which unfortunately has to go to landfill because the residual ink could contaminate an entire batch of recycled plastic. Despite the issue of sustainability forcing us to direct our attention to the future, the answer to this problem may actually be found by casting our gaze to the past.

Long before the invention of the ballpoint pen came the fountain pen, but not as we know it today. Early fountain pens worked in a similar fashion to a syringe, drawing ink from a bottle up into the pen itself with the use of a device commonly called a 'converter'. What makes the traditional refillable fountain pen the perfect environmentally friendly pen is the notion that, apart from requiring the odd top up with fresh ink, nothing else is used or disposed of. There are no empty cartridges to throw away, minimal mess and no risk of ink contamination.

While the sustainability factor of a refillable fountain pen was never a motivation amongst the original models of the past, it is now a very welcome benefit when considering the preservation of the future.

The Pen for Life is a delicate balance of design ingenuity and practicality, with hand-engraved accents to the barrel and plain upper parts for unrestricted branding or personalisation. Manufactured from brass and triple chromium plated, the Pen for Life promises superior, long-lasting performance that endures the test of time.

To refill the Pen for Life, simply use the included converter to pull ink from a bottle up into the chamber within the converter. Bottled inks come in a wider range of types and colours than cartridge inks, giving you greater opportunity to tailor your writing experience to your exact preferences.

Set for Life

The ultimate in sustainability, the Tournier set comprising refillable fountain pen and ballpen will be a life-long companion. Replacement refills are available from www.refillory.com. Please ask for prices.

Glossary

The terminology used in graphics can be bewildering to the casual user and the following will hopefully demystify the more frequently used industry terms.

Bitmap

This casually refers to an image similar to Raster images but unlike raster images it can have it's own file format represented as .bmp.

CMYK

This refers to the subtractive colour process based on Cyan, Magenta, Yellow and Black. It is also a term that is casually used to describe the printing process that produces a 'four colour' or 'process' photographic image. CMYK are consequently referred to as the four 'process' colours. Typically, a CMYK image should not be lower than 300 dots per inch (dpi)

Definition - High

Optically, this means that the edges of a line, a dot or a pixel is sharp. However, casually it also refers to pixel density because high pixel or dot density can produce high definition.

Definition - Low

Optically, this means that the edges of a line, a dot or a pixel is not sharp. However, casually it also refers to pixel density because low pixel or dot density can produce low definition.

Four Colour Process

See CMYK.

Image Definition

Optically, this refers to the edge quality of a line, a pixel, or a dot. However, it is also casually used to describe the quality of an image based on its resolution. eg. a line may have a dense array of pixels which makes it high resolution, but if the edges of that line are blurred it will be described as having low definition.

Image Resolution

This refers to the amount of pixels or dots in a given area (usually per square inch) of a raster or bitmap image. The higher the concentration, the higher the resolution and the more it can be magnified before the pattern of dots can be resolved by the human eye. Resolution is not used as a term when referring to vector images.

Font

Also referred to as 'typeface', this refers to particular styles of letters, numbers and symbols.

Paths

Not all images are pixel based; some are defined by paths. This system uses algorithms that define the colour and shape of an outline and also the colour that fills the area confined by the outline. The benefit of vector images are that they can be magnified infinitely without losing edge definition.

Pixel

This is an abbreviation of 'Picture Element' - It is represented as a dot of a colour, and when combined with other dots can form a complete picture on a display device such as a computer monitor. A standard monitor will display 72 pixels per inch. However, if the image is output to a printer it must be converted to a minimum of 300 dots per inch (dpi).

RGB

This refers to a digital image as seen on a monitor or a scanner in which the additive primary colours Red, Green and Blue light are combined together in various ways to reproduce a broad array of colors.

Raster

This refers to images composed of dots or pixels. It can be a dot of a single colour or dots that represent a full photographic image.

Typeface

Also referred to as 'font', this refers to a particular style of letter, number or symbol.

Vector

This refers to an image that is composed of paths.

How to Supply Your Artwork

Digital, full colour, Process Printing, Raster Images.

Resolution: minimum of 300 dpi.

File format: JPG, PSD, TIFF, PNG.

Fonts: To be rasterised

Vector Images

Resolution: Not Applicable

File Format: PDF, EPS, AI.

Fonts: Convert to outlines or paths.

Printing on Coloured Products

The substrate colour will nearly always influence the shade or hue of a printed image. Therefore, accurate colour matches cannot normally be achieved when printing on colour substrates. If you are in doubt please order a printed sample first.

Terms & Conditions

Samples:

Samples may be subject to a minimal charge to cover costs.

Delivery:

Our standard delivery time to any UK Mainland address is 5-10 working days from your acceptance of the order confirmation.

Inspection:

We would ask you to inspect your goods upon delivery. Claims for faulty goods will be honoured. However, the products must be returned to us in the same condition they left us. Food products such as Mints can not be returned, unless the print or product is faulty, due to Health and Safety regulations.

Images:

The logos and images used in this catalogue are for display purposes only and not intended to suggest or imply that work was undertaken for that company, or that they endorse the product(s) upon which their name is shown. The images are to illustrate the type of print effect possible. However, it is not an indication of exact print areas.

In24 Express Service

In24 is defined as the time between receiving your approved order acknowledgment and artwork proof to the time we despatch your order to your chosen destination.

We must receive your completed purchase order in writing together with the correct artwork before our specified time on the working day prior to your required despatch date.

Your purchase order must contain all relevant information to enable an Order Acknowledgement to be raised successfully and in a timely manner. For line or spot colour prints the files must be supplied as vector artwork such as Adobe Illustrator files (EPS) and all elements, including fonts saved as outlines. For raster images, files should be provided as TIFF, PSD or high resolution Jpegs at least 300dpi but preferably 600dpi. Please note, the products available on this express service may vary from time to time and surcharges may also apply.

Maximum order sizes apply to each item.

Your order will be despatched by us on your behalf using a third-party overnight service. We cannot be held responsible for late deliveries due to third party carriers once the goods have left our premises.

Overnight delivery service is only possible to UK mainland addresses and does not include the highlands or islands of the U.K. Completed purchase order and artwork to be received before a cut of time scale, please ensure that you contact sales to confirm this. This will be the working day prior to your required despatch date.

Your purchase order must contain all relevant information to enable us to produce your order correctly and despatch it to your chosen address

The Maximum order size is 5,000 units with the same print, one colour, one position or full colour to one position. Barrel printing only, clip printing is not available on this service. This order size is subject to change.

A paper proof and order acknowledgement will be provided by e-mail and this must be signed off. The signed artwork approval and order acknowledgement must be returned back to us by e-mail within one hour.

Please note we are happy to provide a mock-up of the artwork, prior to receiving the order

Branding Methods Explained

Direct Digital Printing

Direct digital printing utilises inkjet technology, firing microscopic droplets of ink on top of one another to create an almost limitless spectrum of colours, gradients and shades enabling photo realistic images to be printed directly to the product surface.

Pad Printing

Pad printing utilises a silicone-rubber pad to transfer the printing ink from an etched plate to the surface being printed. The etched areas of the plate represents the artwork that is to become the printed image. Ink is spread across the surface of the plate using a hard 'Doctor Blade' which results in the etched areas being filled with ink. This ink is then picked up by the pad and transferred to the product. The process is ideal for small print areas and where the product surface is not flat.

Transfer Wraps

For the ultimate branding impact, we can print around the entire circumference of the barrel on many of our pens. This 360° wrap is achieved by digitally printing onto specially formulated film and then heat-transferring the image onto the product.

Laser Engraving - Fiber

This particular type of laser engraving is used to engrave metals. The process relies on a fine beam of light, collimated for precision and intensity to burn an image into the surface of the metal product. The resultant image is permanent and has a high perceived value.

Laser Engraving - CO₂

This type of laser engraving is used to engrave plastic, leather and wood. Similar to Fiber lasers, the process relies on a fine beam of light, collimated for precision and intensity to burn the surface of the substrate. Generally, the light beam is not as fine as with Fiber lasers and they operate under completely different wave modulations to that process. It is ideal for engraving wooden pens, leathergoods and rubberised aluminium pens.

Screen Printing

This utilises a metal or wooden frame that is stretched with a very fine-woven polyester mesh. The mesh is coated with a light-sensitive emulsion, exposed to film and then developed. A stencil of the artwork results and ink can be forced through the developed areas of the stencil on to the surface of the product with remarkable precision. This process is fast, inexpensive and suitable for an almost limitless range of substrates.

Colour Matching on Non-White Materials

The most accurate colour matches can be achieved when Pantone references are provided and the surface being printed is white. In the absence of Pantone references, a colour swatch or previously printed sample is acceptable but colour matches are less accurate in this case. It is not possible to produce accurate colour matches on any surface that is not white. Surface colour always influences the printed colour (see adjacent image) and it is advisable to order a printed proof if the colour match is critical. If a printed proof is not ordered, we will assume that our best attempt to match the colour reference requested is acceptable to you, given the constraints or limitations of the ink system in use and the nature and colour of the surface being printed. As a general rule, orders for bright colours to be printed onto dark surfaces will be the least accurate, eg. white printed onto black will appear light grey when compared with true white and all basic Pantone colours and all central Pantone colours will appear very dull when printed onto black or coloured surfaces.

The adjacent image shows how a number of perfectly matched pantone colours appear when printed on coloured pens. This image is a simulation of the effect but it is derived from a precision colour scan of real screenprints on real pens. Every attempt has been made to preserve the authenticity of colour balance through each of the stages of reproduction to ensure that the finished scan reflects the true nature of how pantone colours appear on different coloured substrates. The final stage, the printing of this page, was produced using conventional litho CMYK separations and this system, whilst not ideal, is the only feasible method for reproducing such a wide variety of colour effects. Therefore the colours achieved should not be taken as precisely correct but they are very close to the original screen printed swatch and, as such, can be safely used as a guide.

Clearly, having to print Pantone colours on anything other than white is less than ideal. In reality, we usually modify colour matches to increase their opacity when overprinting non-white materials but this will always result in straying from the original Pantone reference. The resultant image may appear better than if an unmodified ink was used but it will never be an accurate Pantone match. In all cases, the colour will lose its clarity (brightness) by making it more opaque.

Metallic inks (gold and silver) have a reduced life due to their formulation. No guarantee for adhesion, chemical resistance (including perspiration) or abrasion resistance can be given on these colours. Some products can be over-varnished (at additional cost) to protect metallic colours and this should be requested in writing at the time of placing the order.
